To Hold Wife's Love Don't Forget Birthday

BY DOROTHY DIX, The World's Highest Paid Woman Writer.

New idea to you, isn't it, son? The girl whom you are going to lead to the altar in a few days is wildly, romantically in love with you, and you are firmly convinced that she'll stay that way without any assistance on your part, because all of your life you have heard of a woman's unswerving devotion and woman's faithfulness, and you have an idea that a woman's heart is a sort of perpetual motion machine. Once get it going, it goes forever. Nothing stops it.

What's In a Name?

BY MILDRED MARSHALL

"If a window cleaner is paid $7 a day, what does it profit a man to be a college professor?"
"Well, it's true that the college professor has to exist on a pittance, but he has the satisfaction of knowing that if he and the window cleaner ever met at a social gathering he could make the window cleaner look foolish by discussing the influence of the Victorian era on contemporary literature."

Tommyrot, son. Pure bunk. A womodal love is as fragile as an air-fed orchid, and as easily crushed. Don't kid yourself into thinking that just because a woman wears a ring on her wedding finger, and a preacher has mumbled some words over her, that she goes on automatically adoring the man she is tied to, because she is built that way and can't help it. Take it from me that it is far harder for a man to preserve his wife's affection than it is for woman to preserve her husband's affection, because women look so much closer at a bargain to see what they have got than men do.

Now the most important thing in the world to a man is to keep his wife in love with him, and fooled into thinking that she has drawn the capital prize in the matrimonial lottery. For your wife to remain in love with you insures your happiness, because she will always be breaking her neck to please you, and she will be happy and contented herself, and a happy and contented wife makes a peaceful and cheerful you, and she will be happy and contented ed herself, and a happy and contented wife makes a peaceful and cheerful

Also, for your wife to be in love with Also, for your wife to be in love with you insures your prosperity. A woman whose husband is still the hero of her girlish dreams works her fingers to the bone trying to help him along, while the disgruntled and disillusioned wife, who realizes she has been gold bricked by Cupid, takes to extravagance, as a man takes to drink, to drown her sorrows as a solace for her disappointment.

the question then remains of now to do it.

Begin by always keeping yourself attractive looking at home. You would find it impossible to retain many illustrates about a woman whom you constantly saw slouchy and frowsy, in soiled wrappers, and with uncombed hair, and a breath redolent of onlons. Women care more for appearances than men do. Their fancies are daintier. Consider, then, the utter disillusion of the bride whose husband thinks that the marriage service gives him carte bandche to forswear the barber, and smell like a stale beer saloon.

Can you imagine any woman yearning to lay her face against a cheek that has a three days stubble of beard on it? Do you think any woman really pines for a kiss that tastes like an old pipe? Do you suppose any woman ever again woman by the face of a week.

wife's affection must not throw away the bait with which he caught her. No woman ever fell in love with a man who did not go fishing with alluring compliments, and tender speeches, and who did not dangle before her eyes delicate little attentions, and who did not ply her with gifts and remembrances. Being married does not alter a wom-Being married does not alter a women's nature. She still rises to the same tit, and if her husband will continue on the line until their golden wedding her birthday, he can keep her dangling on the line until their golden wedding day.

But if the man is too careless, or too confident, or too indifferent to pay his wife any of these little attentions, some fine day he will find out that she has wriggled off of the hook, and that her heart has drifted away from him forever.

The third important point in retaining a wife's affection is to treat her like an intelligent human being. Don't start out with the assumption that a wife is a baby doll to be dressed up, and played with when you are at lasure, and forgotten when you are busy; or a domestic slave to work in your kitchen for her board and her clothes.

The one thing that makes a woman respect a man most and love him best, and for which she is eternally grateful, is to be treated justly by him. Therefore, if you want a grip on your wife that will hold her to you with hooks of steel, make of your marriage a partnership. Make her feel financially independent by giving her a liberal allowance, and make her feel intellectually independent by granting her a reasonable amount of personal liberty.

If you want your wife to stay at home tellectually independent by granting ner a reasonable amount of personal liberty.

If you want your wife to stay at home give her a latch key. The mere possession of it will keep her from using it. If you wish to keep her tinking that you are the most wonderful man in the world, let her see plenty of other men and she will think how big you are to be above small jealousies. If you want to preserve your halo of romance in her eyes, send her away on a visit whenever she begins to find fault with you.

And if you want to keep your wife on her knees thanking God for her luck in getting you, do something every day to make her happy and to show her that you love her and are thinking of her. Any man can preserve his wife's affection if he wants to, but it takes care and thought to do it.

For the Table

dissolve one cake of yeast foam in one-half cup warm water; mush two me-dium sized boiled potatoes; add one pint half cup warm water; mash two medium sized belied potatoes, add one pint potato water; while hot mix with flour to a moderately stiff batter; when lukewarm add yeast; cover and let stand over night in a warm place. In the morning add to sponge three pints lukewarm water, two teaspoons salt, and as much sifted flour as can be beaden in with a spoon. Let rise. When light add one and one-half tablespoons sugar, and one and one-half tablespoons sugar, and one and one-half tablespoons lard. Knead stiff, adding flour as required. Let rise and then make into loaves, and let rise and then make into loaves, and let rise to double size. Bake 45 to 68 minutes in a moderate oven. Avoid letting the materials become chilled before baking.

Uses for Mayonnaise—in making sandwiches for lunch, if msyonnaise is used instead of butter it will be found more economical and will also keep the bread fresh and moist.

Don't thruw away that half cup of sour cream. Just whip it up well, with the addition of one teaspoon of thick mayonnaise, to serve with lettuce, sliced cucumbers or shredded cabbage.

Substitute for Celery—Use the crisp parts of cabbage. Sprinkle with celery sult or crush a few celery seeds. Put in ice-water, soak the cabbage in this water for an hour. When used in a saired it can scarcely be told from celery.

saind it can scarcely be told from celery.

Improving Yellow Icing—The "eggy" taste of Icing made with egg yolk is entirely eliminated if the julie of a lemon is added and thoroughly beaten with sufficient pulyerized sugar to make stiff enough to spread. Pulyerized sugar mixed with milk, cream, cold costile or water, should have a small quantity of butter added to make a smooth Icing that does not dry out.
Use for Left-Over Cocoa—Use leftover cocoa in making gingerbread, in place of a cupful of milk. Sometimes add a little milk and use it in a tapieca or cornstarch pudding.

UNCLE WIGGILY AND LULU'S LUNCH.

"Lulu! Lulu! What are you doing?" alled Mrs Wibblewobble, the duck ady, to one of her children as she ooked at the clock. "Come! It is almost time for you to be starting for know, mother: I'm going right y: quacked Lulu. I'm just put-

"Well, do hurry:" begged Mrs. Wib-blewobble, and soon Luiu waddled down the front steps, swinging her school books by a strap and singing a little song which went something like this:

a little song which went something like this:

"I dearly love my teacher.
In school there's lots of fun,
But still I'm always glad when I Have all my lessons done."
A little while after that Uncle Wiggily, going hippity-hop through the front hall on his red, white and blue striped rheumatism crutch, saw a little bundle wrapped in white birch bark paper on a chair near the door.
"Well, 'do declare' exclaimed the bunny rabbit gentleman. "Lulu has gone off after all, and forgotten the lunch she so carefully put up. But, no matter, I'll take it to her."
So saying, the old gentleman rabbit gave his pink nose a little twinkle or two to keep it from getting rusty, and, taking his rheumatism crutch under one paw, in the other he took Lulu's lunch and away he started over the fields and through the woods.
"I s'pose folks will talk about seeing me going to the hollow stump school so often when the lady mouse teacher is there," thought the old rabbit gentleman to himself. "They'll think I know nothing, going to school so much in my old age. But something always seems to be happening, making me go there. This time it's Lulu's lunch she has forgotten.

there. This time it's Lulu's lunch she has forgotten.
"I wouldn't want my little duck girl friend to go hungry," said Uncle Wiggily to himself. "And, as Nurse Jane has gone shopping at the three and four cent store, and as Mrs. Wibblewobble is washing the dishes, there is only one thing left to do—that's for me to take the lunch."

Ideal Man Fails To Continue Attentions

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson-Since I was a child of 15 I have thought I loved my "ideal man." Perhaps it was here worship at first, but it terminated in love. He had just come home from college to teach and became the very life of the community. I idolized him and because I was so young I could not conceal

As a Woman Thinks

BY EDITH E. MORIARTY.

ONE REASON FOR "EQUAL

Here is an advance model which is particularly suited to the sweet girl graduate or the diinty bridesmaid. It is a sheer and girlish frock of white is a sheer and girlish frock of white dotted net made over a slip of heavy white satin. The skirt is comprised of many ruffles and a deep ruffle on the short sleeves gives the effect of a cuff. A bit of color may be added in the satin girdle and cluster of flowers at the belt.

When Making Pancakes, beat the whites of the egg separate and make very stiff and add last. Makes the pancakes much lighter.

Here is an advance model which is business.

The fair and square person will not compain too bitterly or too openly when he sees another doing his job, doing it well and perhaps even better too much even if that person is a woman. Could anyone blame him, however, if he complained when his place was usurped by a person merely because that person would work for less money? That is the big thing which women must overcome today and those women who are not advocates for the "equal pay for equal work" theory better think it over.

WHEN PEERSONS EXPECT LETTERS

arms and kiss me. He never mentioned love to me but because he kissed me i thought he loved me. He asked me if i loved him, and I said "yes." He never called again. Do you think he lost respect for me? Five weeks later I went away to school, but am teaching new, and he is here. I can never marry unless I marry him. Do you think I love him, is he worthy, and how can I make him love me? I would make any sacrifice for him—he is 27 and I am 20.

If the "ideal" man you write about look advantage of you when you were just It, and then dropped you in such a manner, he certainly is not worthy of the love you have falsely raised up.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I am a girl of 14, am tall and siender. What length should my dresses be, and am I too old to have my hair cut off? If not, how short should I wear it? DOLLY. Your dresses should come nearly to your shoe tops, if you are tall and slender. Even grown people now wear their hair bobbed, and if you like bobbed hair you could have it cut in this manner.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—Is a bright peacock blue dress to be worn this summer? I have white canvas slippers with baby French heels. Am 15 and would like to know if I am old enough to wear high heels?

A dress of this color will be all right for summer and baby French heels on white canvas slippers are all right for you, but I would not advise high heels.

you realize this mistake, forget it, and do not let it happen again. You are too young to talk of "wrecked life." A corn color would be extremely becoming to you, and any of the pastel shades should be well for you to wear. Nothing is as pretty for a graduation dress as white organdie or voile, simply made, Gloves would be all right on the stage, and taffeta coats in small towns are correct. It is customary to ask a departing guest to call again.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I am 16 and have been in love with a boy three years my junior, I go to the show once a week and he never sits by me any more or takes me home. Would you ask him to sit by you or would you pretend that he was near? I love him. What could I do to make him love me?

CURIOSITY.

You are too young to know what love is, and this is particularly true respirding a boy three years younger than you are. Forget it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—Would it be a disgrace for a girl to kiss a bey to make him stop smoking? He says that is the only thing that would make him stop, and it is causing him to have bad health. I love him dearly and do not want him to have bad health. I am $15TER.

I do not believe the boy would stop smoking if you kissed him If smoking is injuring the boy's health he should stop whether you kiss him or not. I would not let my love influence me in granting this request, for he is doubtless only seeking to secure a kiss and does not thean to stop smoking after he secures what he wants

Dear Mrs Thompson—I am a girl of 18. My mother bitterly objects to my going with boys. She says I am too young. Should I slip off and go to my friends' homes and meet them there?

I do not think you are too young to receive company at home, and you should try and persuade your mother to allow you to see boys in your home. But above all, I would not slip away frem home to meet boys.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—If you dearly love a boy and he loves you, how long should you go with him before you let him kiss you? Should you ever let a boy hold your hand? I am 17.

BUE EYES.

Unless you are very sure that you are going to marry the boy you should not allow him to kiss you. The same thing applies to boys holding your band. Beware of permitting too many theritis, innecent though they may appear.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I am a girl of 14. I have clear blue eyes, fair complexion, dark, curly hair, very nearly black. What colors would be becoming to me! How long should I wear my dresses?! am five feet II inches in height, and in the eighth grade. Is this good? How do I write for my age? ANXIOUS. You can wear almost any color becomingth but light colors, with the exception of dark blue, should be best. Your dresses should nearly reach to your since tone I consider you sufficiently far advanced and you write very well for your age.

Will "M. T.," "Flora" and "L. W. M." please send me their names and addresses? I have letters for them and can not forward them until names and addresses reach me.

SOME TIME.

Two little girls were playing in the street when an automobile was seen approaching Loretta, the elder, said to her sister: Look out, Sophia, or the automobile will run over you and you will never be alive again as long as you live.

THE FINALE.

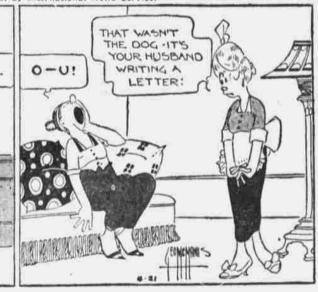

"Do you remember the night you pro-posed marriage to me. Henry?"
"Oh, yes, very well indeed."
"I just hung my head and said noth-ing, did; 1?"
"You did; and that was the last time I ever saw you that way."
